Beyond Bellet.

When Abhabam Lincoln was a young man, his prodigious strength and his skill in wrestling were matters of note throughout central Illinois. Few in deed were the men who could boast of having laid him on his back.

Somewhere along in the thirties there was a case on trial in one of the circuit courts in that section in which an effort was made to impeach the testimony of one of the witnesses. The evidence was conflicting. Some would believe the witness on oath and others would not.

At last a middle aged man with a determined expression of countenance was called to the stand. The usual question was put touching the reputation of the witness for truth and verac-

"Would you believe him on oath?" "No, I wouldn't," he answered, and before the lawyer on the opposite side could interpose he gave his reason:

"I heerd him braggin' onct that he'd throwed Abe Lincoln in a fair an' square rassle." No other witnesses were called. The attempt to impeach was successful .-

Youth's Companion.

A Shrewd Yankee.

A certain Boston hotel man tells this good story at his own expense:

When a small boy on the farm, his folks often sent him to the neighbors to buy a dozen eggs when their hens falled to lay enough. He noticed that the old farmer always held each egg before a lighted candle and examined it carefully. In his innocence of Yankee shrewdness the boy supposed that this was prompted more by honesty and intention to detect whether the eggs were bad or

One day, however, when he counted his eggs, according to custom, there were only eleven in the basket.

With a determination not to be cheated, the lad trudged proudly back to the house and quickly made known his "Oh," said the old farmer, "that's all right, my boy. One of them has a dou-ble yolk."-Boston Record.

Sea Necklaces.

Pretty nearly every one has seen the curious "sea ruffles," or "sea neck-laces," which are found plentifully on ocean benches. These are the egg cases of the sea snails. They consist of a number of small disk shaped envelopes attached along a sort of stem, the biggest of them being in the middle. In each envelope there is a little spot of thinner material, which the young break through when they are ready to be hatched. When the female gasteropod is about to lay, she burles herself in the sand, from the surface of which the "necklace" of eggs is gradually extruded. Being thus set adrift and exposed to the elements, as well as to devouring enemies, few of eggs are ever hatched, but those ich do come into the world safely and survive doubtless live to a very

Restaurant Cooks' Fees

When a cook applies for a place in restaurant, he says first: "What's the wages?"

And after he has learned about the wages he goes on: "Includin' grease?"

"Yes," is the answer, or else it is 'No," whereupon he resumes: "Includin' bones?"

An inquisitive person the other day heard a cook asking these strange ques-tions of a restaurateur, and the inquisitive person inquired, "What on earth did that cook mean?" "He meant that he wished to know if he would get the grease and bones as perquisites," the restaurateur explained. "The waste grease and bones of a big eating house amount in the course of a month to a great deal, you know. Here we get monthly 3,760 pounds of bones, and they all go to the cook. He sells them at a balf cent a pound, and thus they add $4.50 a week to his salary."-Philadelphia Record.

The florin, one of the most famous of modern coins, originated in Florence. Some say that it gave the name to the city, while others assert that it was first so called because it had on it a flower-de-luce, from the Italian florone, flower-de-luce, from the Italian florone, or "flower," for the same reason that an English silver piece is called a "crown," or certain goldpieces in France indifferently a "napoleon" or a "louis," or the ten dollar goldpiece in America an "eagle."

Two countries, Austria and Hollane, have retained the florin as a unit of monetary value, taking it at a time when it was very universal in Europe, its usage having been rendered general by the financial supremacy of the little states of northern Italy and the imperfect coinage system of the other countries of the continent.

In the year 1859 a snowstorm swept over New York on the 5th of July. It was Monday, and the fireworks, which were then set off in front of the city hall in celebration of the glorious Fourth, had been kept over from Satunday. The weather was pleasant enough in the morning and during the sergeant of the Afternoon, but toward dusk heavy clouds appeared in the sky, a northwest wind followed, the thermometer went down to 31 degrees—one degree below freezing—and the snowflakes came down at a lively gatt. Men who went out that night wore their winter overcoats and dinot find them uncomfortable, for the cold lasted for hours.—New York Press.
